In violation of a UN ban, it conducted a purported hydrogen bomb test over the weekend and followed by a test of an intercontinental ballistic missile (ICBM). The Pentagon warns that the test poses a grave threat to U.S. and regional security. The US has said it will not allow the North Koreans to go "unchecked," while Japan has also denounced the missile test. The US says the test has demonstrated an "unacceptable threat to the US, its territories, its allies, and the region." Speaking to reporters Monday, State Department spokesperson Heather Nauert said the threat to US security is "clear and grave," as Pyongyang continues to test its nuclear capabilities. Pyongyang has demanded that Washington and Seoul take immediate action to stop what it has called "foolish and reckless" behavior, accusing the US of starting a nuclear war. US Vice President Mike Pence has denounced the tests, calling it a "flagrant violation" of UN Security Council resolutions. "The United States has been and remains committed to reaching a peace and diplomatic resolution to the North Korea problem," he said Monday, adding that the US will not take part in any dialogue with Pyongyang until it abandons its nuclear weapons and programs. North Korean leader Kim Jong Un also warned the US not to make any further "reckless remarks" and said any such "provocations will only increase the burden of nuclear threat and turbulence on the Korean peninsula and the region." The missile test came after nuclear talks between Kim and Trump stalled out last week over how to end the war of words and threats between the two countries. The Trump administration insists Kim only wants to denuclearize. Pyongyang claims it wants peace e79caf774b

It is one of the largest manufacturers of household products in Denmark, with 72% market share. The company was named the strongest brand in the world for household products by The Holmes Report in 2005. Company history Grundfos began as a ship design and engineering company; its first success came in the form of a high speed pilot boat. In 1886, an American, Edward Grundfos, left U.S. to establish a shipbuilder in northern Zealand, near Copenhagen, with his brother Erik. After a fire in the shipyard in 1894, they built the first modern Danish shipyard, Kastrup Fabriksfart in 1894. In 1956, the shipyard was expanded again to include a bulk cargo terminal. In 1978, the company's name was changed to Grundfos A/S and its first venture into the household products industry began. The company also started manufacturing washing machines in 1993.
